We're Proud of Her and Him

SHE WAS NOT named Atlanta's "Woman of the Year," but she is Atlanta's "Business Woman of the Year."

And she's a daughter of Bulloch County which still holds a love for her home county.

Mrs. Turner E. Smith. Many will not recognize that name. Say "Leila Bunce" — and she is immediately recognized as the daughter of Mrs. J. A. Bunce ("Miss Georgia") of RFD 1.

On Wednesday evening of last week, Mrs. Smith, together with four other outstanding women of Atlanta were honored at a dinner at the Lulu L. Kingberry School, was named "Woman of the Year."

In the preliminary awards Mrs. Smith had been named the "Woman of the Year in Business."

She is the only woman in the South who is president of a large educational publishing company. She was acclaimed, not because she occupies a unique executive position in her field, but because of the intelligence and acumen she displayed when circumstances forced upon her a quick transition from the role of housewife to that of business executive. In 1947 upon the death of her husband, she took over his business, the Turner E. Smith Publishing Company, a firm which for 25 years has concentrated on the publication of agricultural and other educational textbooks, and by hard work, study, and determination expanded the company's sphere and carried it to heights of success beyond any it had ever known.

During the past year, the company had more than fifty titles on the market, including nine new and revised volumes, and sales, widely distributed through the forty-eight states, exceeded a million copies.

Keep Our Guard Up

WE COMMEND the citizens of Bulloch county on their excellent health report as made last week by the Georgia Department of Public Health.

Of the 14,140 persons examined during the county's TB-VD survey in November of last year only 466 were found to be infected with syphilis. This is less than 3 1/2 percent of those examined and is well below the average for the counties in Georgia who have participated in similar surveys.

Education in, and an understanding of the prevention and treatment of syphilis and gonorrhea are the ways to a county free of these two dread diseases.

Just because we've had a survey and have found only 466 cases we can't afford to let down our guards against venereal diseases.

Report Him Immediately

WORD REACHES us from the Griffin News by way of the Cobb County Times that a magazine peddler has been trying to swindle Gold Star Mothers in Griffin.

According to the Griffin News this fellow is handsome in a swarthy sort of way. He secures advance information on the mothers of World War II dead, then uses that information to fake a friendship with the dead son.

When the swindler has established contact he tries to sell $10 magazine subscriptions or if he fails in that, he tries to obtain money by other pretenses.

The Cobb County Times claims that's about the meanest swindle scheme of which they ever heard.

And we agree.

If such a character should blow into Statesboro and begin working over the mothers of our war dead he should be reported immediately to the police—or to one of the two veterans organizations here—and let them take him to the police.

Which is another argument supporting the need for the city authorities to keep a closer check on street peddling, itinerant magazine salesmen, and building-to-building begging.

Prior to entering the field of business, Mrs. Smith was author of several books on home economics; she organized the first home economics courses in the Atlanta area; she served as president of the National Education Association's Department of Home Economics, president of the Georgia Home Economics Association and, during World War 2, was volunteer nutrition chairman of the Atlanta Chapter of the Red Cross.

Bulloch County is proud of "Atlanta's Woman of the Year in Business."

IT WAS Bulloch County Week in Atlanta last week.

What with Leila Bunce Smith (Mrs. Turner E. Smith) being named Atlanta's Woman of the Year in Business and Bealy Smith being awarded, for the third time, a bronze plaque by the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company for an outstanding record in organization development, Statesboro and Bulloch County can say to Atlanta, "Look to Bulloch for your leaders."

Pulaski Lethbridge Smith was the name his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Smith, gave him when he saw the light of day, but he was always "Bealy" to us around here. The older folk in the county will place him when we say that his father, D. C. Smith, was general superintendent of the S&S Railway with terminals here in Statesboro.

Bealy is the general agent for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, with offices in the C&S National Bank Building in Atlanta. The last we heard, Bealy was the proud father of five young-uns.

We are personally proud of Bealy. Statesboro and Bulloch County can point with pride... hometown boy makes good.

Penalizing a Teen-Ager

JUDGE ABNER ISRAEL of the City Recorder's Court in Albany, Ga., made a challenging decision the other day in the case of a teen-age youth charged with reckless driving, which constitutes a warning to others youngsters and is worthy of the consideration of the judiciary elsewhere. The 16-year-old boy, accused of being a "hot rod" driver, was ordered by the jurist to pay a fine of ten dollars, which he must earn by getting a job. He must also study the city traffic laws and regulations and make a report on them to the police department traffic division in two weeks. He must stand a test successfully on the traffic laws—and to top everything else he must write a 1,000-word paper on why cities must have traffic laws! If this sounds too drastic, it is well to remember that between 35,000 and 40,000 persons are killed on our highways and streets every year as the result of carelessness—and of recklessness—and that more than 1,000,000 are injured, some of them for life.—Savannah Morning News.

No Relief in Sight

The Editor's Uneasy Chair

Sitting there we were struck by the sense of a compelling urgency that seemed to have gripped the 16 men bending over desks designed for much smaller people.

Sitting there watching them fumble stubby pencils over dog-eared workbooks we were struck with their desire to learn.

To learn to read, and write, and figure, and understand grammar. They were not youth six to 18 years old.

They were all veterans of a World War.

All men, with war records to prove it. But they were learning what you and I learned when we were between six and 12 years of age.

It was a class of adults attending school four nights a week for three hours a night.

Veterans come from Portau, Brookline... all sections of the county... to learn to read and write.

And J. C. Adams, principal of the Statesboro High School, there to help them learn.

We sat there and marveled as Mr. Adams called out, "RAISE," as "FRECKLED," as in freckled face.

"PLUCKED," as plucked an apple. It was the spelling lesson.

Men in overalls, fatigue suits, dungarees, in sport shirts and slacks... leaning over paper with pencil, carefully spelling out the words as Mr. Adams gave them out.

"Now try this one," suggest Mr. Adams as he went into the arithmetic lesson and leaned over a site folder and gives him a start in multiplying fractions.

And all the while time was passing... time in which each up all the years they had missed.

Reading—"Dreaming and Daring."

Health—"Habits, Healthful, and Safe."

There was no restlessness among them. There was no looking about at what the other fellows were doing. No looking out the windows, dreaming.

All's Fair... by Jane

It's time to call the grocery store and order something to eat. But when I think of food my mind turns straight to meat. Yesterday "was" chicken, the day before, meatballs; Now always on Monday morning I make telephone calls.

And by the time I check on parties and where everybody goes, To plan a meal looks up as the dead end of a choker.

Cabbage slaw and onions, snapbeans, or succotash— Then I read the icebox and wind up by making hash— So Ladies and Gentlemen (if we have any gentlemen readers) We offer you hash, not so tasty—maybe, a little short on the pepper— and absolutely no spice...

HOWEVER with the Bannan-Cowarts it must have been heavenly hash. They have recently returned from California where they visited son Kenneth, his wife Louise, and sons, Bill and Jerry, who live just 20 miles from Hollywood, in Pasadena. While there, Bannan and Velma attended the Tournament of Roses, which, we imagine, was a modified version of our own camel-his show. Flower-laden floats paraded by for nearly three hours (we're writing this morning with a "Feather on my Nose"). Velma allows that her must have been about a million and 999,000 people present besides her and Bannan, and there they sat shivering in the cold.

Velma was listening out for some Southern accent when she heard a Georgia woman behind her. Mrs. Cowart asked, "Are you from Georgia?" and a man chimed in and said, "Listen to that accent!" The woman proved to be from Atlanta.

Bannan and Velma saw the Rose Bowl game on television, attending radio shows in Hollywood, among them were Ralph Edwards' "Truth or Consequences," Baby Snooks, and Life of Riley.

But it was up to Bannan to go all-out for Hollywood stunts. He came home with a Jimmy Durante and Ed Wynne's special—all in one piece. The story goes that he approached Roger Holland, wearing this artificial star, and asked for a dime to get a sandwich. Roger reached in his pocket—and as usual didn't have any small change hash. ON OUR RIDE yesterday we must have seen over a thousand new azalea plants. Think how lovely Statesboro will be five years from now—always if Russia's Azaleas don't flatten us out.

ETHEL RUSHING came up with this one: "They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks, but you can, and Ethel adds, 'You can if the dog is willing to learn.' Ethel, who has been ill and still hasn't regained her former pep and vivacity, has learned new tricks. You should see the lovely bag she has crocheted with bronze beads. It is lined with gold—brown and the frame is brown—a truly distinctive accessory for the handsomest costume.

WE HEARD this one about Virginia Trappnell (Mrs. Lamar). She had put out shrubbery and she went over to "Mimi's" for some fertilizer. Ethel sent her to the garage where the fertilizer was. When Virginia called her over to admire her shrubbery, Ethel discovered that her daughter had used cement instead of fertilizer. There were two bags sitting side by side and Virginia dipped out of the wrong one.

WE REMEMBER this week Holis Cannon who is recuperating from a serious operation at Bulloch County Hospital. Mary says that he is improving and we're glad to hear that he is better.

As Ever,
JANE.

PLEASE PASS THE CHICKEN

Last September, I read in the Atlanta Journal that there was to be no "live spuds, please" at South Georgia College in Douglas; no more old family-style serving of meals... modern cafeteria equipment had been installed at a cost of $15,000 and the purpose of this innovation was to give students more and better food for their money.

I clipped that item and saved it, thinking I might do a column on those two different modes of feeding college students. Then soon afterward, another piece about family-style eating caught my eye and I pinned it to the dispatch from Douglas. This second write-up concerned Aunt Fanny's Cabin, which is just off the Smyrna road, the Marietta (Georgia) highway... I quote from Paul Jones' article in the Atlanta Constitution of October 18 (last year)—"It is here that corn pone and pot likker, turnip greens and collards, cabbage and fried chicken are served in the old-fashioned family-style of the South... The service starts with a large bowl of vegetable soup and platters of piping-hot corn and chicken, steak and ham and then brought out and placed in the center of the table... a seemingly endless procession of Negro waitresses bearing platters of vegetables and wooden bowls of tossed salad, topped with large slices of onion follows... and the meal is crowned by a double slice of apple pie, or a cobbler, and hot coffee." Paul Jones says this Aunt Fanny's Cabin is under the management of Harvey Hester, a fat man, "Whose entire girl is testimony to the cooking."

Then, while my head was still reeling and my mouth watering, I saw a picture of a family-style table groaning with heaped-up platters and serving dishes that trimmed over with just-looking victuals, and the headline of the accompanying write-up said, "All you can eat for $1.85," and the sub-head announced, "Down in Alabama, a Purefoy supper can put five pounds on a guest..."

Of course, I settled right down and read every word of description; then, conquering my impulse to make a covered wagon of my supper, at Purefoy Hotel in South Talladega, Ala., kept coming to mind. The list of meats including roast turkey, baked chicken, home-baked ham, special lamb roast, rum roast, creamed chicken, and chicken croquette... Then rice, green peas, creamed potatoes, French lima beans, sweet potatoes in orange cups, mushrooms, spinach, Brussels sprouts, cauliflower, a scalloped potatoes, scalloped asparagus with almonds, macaroni and cheese... Then the salads and relishes... Then cheese straws, corn muffins and hot rolls... Then an array of desserts including homemade ice cream, date pudding, ginger bread, lemon pie, plum pudding and baked custard. Then coffee, tea or milk. Listen, doesn't that make Phil Harris' hammy and mammy sound tame?

Well, later on, in a friend's magazine, was an illustrated article that almost convinced me I could not do better than to go to Hoag's Hotel at Shartlesville, Pennsylvania, and get in on some of those Pennsylvania Dutch dinners, served at "white-clothed tables laden with savory home-cooked delicacies." A typical "smack" was said to include roast beef, fried chicken, gravy, corn, chicken salad, lima beans, scalloped chick peas, sweet potatoes, celery, chow-chow, apricots, olives, pears, tapioca, cookies, cherry pie and coconut cream pie... But who can go tearing up to Pennsylvania?

West Side and Portal Farm Bureaus Hold Old-Fashioned Community Sing

Community singing along with a special chorus featured the West Side Farm Bureau meeting Tuesday night.

O. C. Banks led the community singing and then Francis Trappnell, Lamar Trappnell, Mrs. A. J. Trappnell, Mr. Banks and Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Bazemore made up a chorus that sang numerous songs. The men in the group did several songs also as a quartet.

PORTAL also featured singing at its meeting Thursday night. The quartet came down and provided music through the meal and then did several songs afterwards. C. M. Cowart, the Portal president, asked A. D. Milford, J. J. Patten, C. W. Brack, Rupert Parrish and Clifford Martin to arrange programs for the year and to include more such musical programs.

Each of these three Farm Bureaus used the motion picture, "Operations Crossroads," the Bikini Atoll atom bomb test, and a barber's cue supper for the social part of their programs.

STILTON CONSIDERS "BLUE CROSS" Stillman made plans to put the Blue Cross hospital insurance program into effect at their meeting Wednesday night. H. B. Coolidge, administrative officer for Blue Cross in the 50 mile area around Savannah, explained the details of the insurance program. The Georgia Farm Bureau is making an effort to get the 50-mile limitation removed during this session of the legislature so that all the farm people in the Farm Bureau can take advantage of the rates offered by the group plan.

C. M. Graham, president of the Stillman chapter, named Mrs. Ollie Atkins chairman of a committee to work out the details for the program in the Stillman chapter. M. P. Martin, Francis Grest and Dan Lee were named on the committee. Several families paid in their dues at the meeting to start the program in Bulloch county.

DENMARK TO HEAR DR. GRACE OVERTON The Denmark Farm Bureau will have as its speaker Dr. Grace Overton, author and speaker, Tuesday night, C. C. DeLoach, president of that chapter, announces.

Dr. Overton will be in the county during that entire week and only have one night available for the Farm Bureau meetings, which was Tuesday night. Mr. DeLoach was anxious for his group to hear her. The meeting is at 7 p. m. at the Denmark school.

Mr. DeLoach has worked out an agreement with the county Farm Bureau officers to invite all the community and county officers to Denmark Tuesday night. P. M. Dr. Overton to be At C. of C. Meet

Dr. Grace Sloan Overton, famous author and speaker, will be the Chamber of Commerce speaker Tuesday, Dr. John Mooney, president, announces.

The Chamber of Commerce meets at the Hotel at 1 p.m. Dr. Mooney urges every member to be present that can possibly attend. It is not often such famous people can be brought to the organization.

Dr. Overton has been in the county before and met with very favorable responses. She will be in the county all next week for several programs, but Dr. Mooney thought there would be many businessmen that would not have a chance to attend some of the other meetings and asked that she appear before them Tuesday.

Lois A. Waters, chairman of the membership and finance committee, reports that some $800 more have been received as a result of the letters mailed out two weeks ago. Those making donations not previously listed were the Producers Cooperative Association, Sheppard Warehouse, Statesboro Auto Parts Co., H. P. Jones, Fletcher-Covart Drug Co., Statesboro Telephone Co., G. W. Oliver, E. B. Rushing, Sea Island Bank, Henry's, Sears, Roebuck and Co., and Cobb and Foxhall Warehouse.

Looking For Your Bird Pup?

You been looking for your pet bird pup? Liver-spotted, about 6 to 10 months old?

Cheek with Charlie Sims at 360 Savannah street and the police were called.

He says that the police were going to shoot the pup but he's such a nice-looking dog that they gave the dog to him.

"And now before I become too attached to the pup, I'd like for his owner to claim him and come and get him," Sims says.

The dog was bothering folks on Savannah street and the police were called.
